

There was a farmer
in a village far away.
He carried the produce of his farm on his donkey's back to the market to sell.
In the evening,
he let the donkey loose.

Some monkeys that roam in the village jump on to the roof of the farmer's house in the evening.

They sit on the roof, jump here and there and scratch themselves.

People in the neighbourhood come out and watch the monkeys.

They enjoy looking at the monkeys.

(C) Sumitha Publishers

