Once upon a time
there was a Gamarala,
a chieftain of the village.

He became famous
as the man
who could tame even
Devils - yakku.
For he had tamed
two Devils*
and they came
to pay homage
to him every day
with a bag of
millet and a
basket of vegetables.

One day, the two Devils brought two bags and two baskets.

“Why are you bringing me two bags and two baskets today?” he asked the Devils.

“Because we won’t be able to come tomorrow.

There is an important meeting summoned by our Majesty the King. The two of us must attend it.”

“Where is this meeting?” asked the Gamarala.

“Under the spreading tamarind tree, near the big rock,” answered the Devils.
